Why should children learn a second language?

- The earlier a foreign language is introduced, the more easily a greater level of understanding and fluency is achieved. Early language learning also fosters a healthy and global attitude which may set the tone for all academic endeavors.
- Children who know more than one language have greater levels of success in other areas of study, including reading, writing, grammar, social studies and history. On average, students score higher on ACT and SAT tests.
- Studying a foreign language makes children more aware of other cultures and more likely to understand and relate to different types of people.
- Knowledge of a foreign language is a definite advantage in many careers and is clearly becoming a marketable asset.
